COMPOSITE DESCRIPTION

Portfolios in the Dividend Plus composite are managed using the Dividend Plus Strategy. The Dividend Plus Strategy is a long only strategy seeking to outperform the Russell 1000 Value Total Return Index benchmark. The Dividend Plus Strategy is constructed using roughly 30 individual stocks representing all the economic sectors within the S&P 500. The strategy is designed to always be fully invested, reducing or eliminating stocks that are overvalued and looking for stocks that are out of favor or historically cheap based on a variety of metrics. The Dividend Plus portfolio follows a fundamental screening for dividend growth and free cash flow generation. This provides both current income for investors as well as some belief that the company will be able to continue to expand and invest in their businesses in the future while growing dividends.

The Dividend Plus Strategy seeks to build a portfolio of high-quality dividend paying value stocks, while minimizing overall large cap volatility and delivering constant dividend cashflows.

Changes in investment strategies, contributions or withdrawals may cause the performance results of your portfolio to differ materially from the reported composite performance. Different types of investments involve varying degrees of risk, and there can be no assurance that any specific investment will either be suitable or profitable for a client's investment portfolio.

Historical performance results for market indices and/or categories, generally do not reflect the deduction of transaction and/or custodial charges or the deduction of an investment management fee, the incurrence of which would have the effect of decreasing historical performance results. Economic factors, market conditions, and investment strategies will affect the performance of any portfolio and there are no assurances that it will match or outperform any particular benchmark.

Number of portfolios, composite assets, and total firm assets represent end-of-period values.

Reported dispersion numbers represent the equal weighted standard deviation of portfolio gross performance for the subset of accounts managed the entire reporting period. Dispersion is not reported for years with five (5) or less portfolios under management the entire period.

The three-year annualized ex-post standard deviation is calculated using 36 consecutive monthly gross returns for both the composite and the benchmark. The composite uses population calculation for standard deviation.

Total firm assets refer solely to all discretionary accounts managed by Kingsview Investment Management.
